It was noteworthy that this rate in the Basque Country was 9.7 in 2009 and 9.3 in 2004, meaning that in 2013 it had fallen below the rate from ten years earlier.

In these same years, 2004 to 2009, the rates averaged 10.4 and 10.8 births per 1,000 inhabitants in the countries of the EU-28.

In the ranking of EU-28 countries, the birth rate of the Basque Country in 2013 exceeded only that of Portugal (7.9 births per 1,000 inhabitants), Germany and Italy (8.5 in both countries) and Greece (8.6). On the other hand, the highest rates corresponded to Ireland (15.0), France (12.4), United Kingdom (12.1) and Sweden (11.8), among others.

The rate for Spain was also very low in 2013 - 9.1 births per 1,000 inhabitants - although it was slightly higher than that registered in the Basque Country. In 2004 and 2009 it was 10.6 births.
