The Gender equality index (GEI) is a summary indicator of social advances in gender equality in six different areas or domains: Employment, Money, Knowledge, Time, Power and Health. The results are reported on a scale with 100 representing full equality.

The Basque Country exceeded the EU-27 average in every domain

The Basque Country topped the EU-27 average in all the domains measuring gender equality. The greatest margin was in the Time domain, where the Basque Country ranked significantly higher than all European Union countries. It also scored higher in the Health domain, equalling the fourth-ranked country, particularly in the Health status sub-domain, where it would have been first. However, it ranked lower than Spain, which had an Index score of 76.4.

In the Basque Country, the domain that came closest to full gender equality was Health, with 92.4 points out of 100. At the other end of the equality scale, the Power domain scored 63.1 points. Within this last dimension, equality was higher in Political power, with an equality score of 90.2 points, but much lower in Economic power (52.2 points) and Social power (53.3 points).
